AMERICAN MARINES MAKING NEW GAINS ON IWO JIMA; "YANKS" FIGHT WAY GRIMLY UP SLOPES OF 554-FOOT SURIBACHI VOLCANO; CAMPAIGN FOLLOWS OUTLINED PLAN

Large Portion of Artillery is Ashore and in Position

PREDICT BARRAGES

Naval Guns of Huge Ar- mada Give Excellent Sup- port to Forces

ADVANCED PACIFIC FLEET
HEADQUARTERS, GUAM, Feb. 21 (INS)—American Marine invasion forces—despite increasing resistance from Japanese tanks, artillery and rockets—battled their way upward today for new gains north of the captured airfield on the northern portion of Iwo Jima, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

At the same time, the Yanks who stabbed all the way across the green, sulphuric island to sever Japanese defenses fought their way up the slopes of 554-foot-high Suribachi volcano. The volcano had been by-passed as the Marines drove north of it to reach the west coast along a 1,000-foot front.

Despite the fierce opposition meeting the Yanks under command of Lieut. Gen. Holland Smith, developments indicated that the American campaign to conquer the island was proceeding according to plan, and possibly was even ahead of schedule.

One significant fact of Adm.
Douglas M. Flaherty's communique which told of "slight" gains being made north of the southern airfield was the mention of Marine artillery.

A large portion of our artillery now ashore and in position to support both flanks of the beachhead, the communique asserted.
Thus foreshadowing terrific barrages designed to wipe out Jap artillery and artillery positions at the twin volcanoes which stand at either end of the eight-square-mile island.

In addition to the Marine batteries, some of which were firing against the enemy within five minutes after hitting the beach, the Marines enjoyed the continuing support of naval guns of the fleet armada which supported the initial landings.

Battleships, cruisers and destroyers of the more than 800-ship invasion fleet, which expended more than 8,000 tons of shells during the first phases of the operation, turned their heavy batteries upon numerous caves and strongpoints
from which the Japs were resisting.
The naval guns, meanwhile, also were credited with having broken up a Japanese counter-attack while it was still in the formative stages.
Some 18 Nip tanks moved toward the Yank lines at the airfield, their way prepared by artillery, mortar and rocket fire.

However, the Yank ground troops contacted the warships by "walkietalkie" and soon a rolling barrage walked toward the enemy armor, which promptly turned and fled.
The Japanese artillery and American guns hammered away at each other's positions, moving International News Service war correspondent John R. Henry to describe the action as "probably the greatest artillery duel the Japs yet have fought in the Pacific."

MEATLESS MONTHS

If government food officials are borne out in their prediction that meat will virtually disappear from the market next summer, civilians will not be able to complain that they were not warned. The public has been given six months' notice that the time is coming when butcher shops will be even emptier than they are now.

This is ample notice, and those who can raise chickens or rabbits in their back yards can profit by it. It is not especially helpful as far as the average consumer is concerned, for there is little most people can do about this problem. Meat is a perishable commodity and in any event rationing restrictions put a definite limit on the proclivity to stock up.

So the vast majority will simply have to do without, if and when the shortage appears. There is an "if" in the situation, for there are several factors involved. One is unexpectedly over-all meat production, another is the sharp drop in livestock marketing that normally occurs in spring and summer, and the third is related to these two because the government may not be able to complete its purchases and get out of the market before livestock offerings fall off.

Some explanation should be forthcoming, in any event, for the fact that estimates of production have proved too optimistic. Stockmen have issued many warnings that government policies would reduce the supply of meat and the public is entitled to know the facts. If meatless months are necessary and unavoidable, officials should be prepared to explain why.

INEXPLICABLE

Seeking an explanation for continued resistance in Germany, and willingness of the German people to persist in a hopeless struggle, it is necessary to look no farther than to the propagandists, who continue to elaborate upon the fate of the nation following defeat or surrender. Recent utterances have been the most dire of all. Armed occupation for at least a decade, in some portions of the country until the year 2000, were listed as among the most fearful penalties.

Nazi war lords are cognizant of the fate that awaits them following defeat and are striving to fend off the evil day as long as possible. To that end they are attempting to hold allegiance of the civilian population, without which they could not endure. Cleverly, they have told the people it is better to die fighting than to commit suicide by surrender. It is propaganda that appears to be falling on willing ears.

Viewed in the light of common sense, there isn't the slightest trace of logic in the statement. Defeat for Germany is coming, certainly and swiftly. Why, then, should more men die, more cities be destroyed, when there no longer is hope for victory? Germany knows the price it must pay for the war. Continued resistance only adds to the bill while delaying, briefly, the day of payment.

WHAT'S GOING ON?

Ordinarily it is accepted as a good thing in war to allow reasonable forms of diversion and entertainment. These have always been taken as morale-builders.

So long as it is in moderation, what is wrong with the war-plant worker on the night shift, for example, stopping in for an hour's relaxation on his way home?

The art and custom of social drinking has had a great stimulus under the Roosevelt administration. Not only did Roosevelt ride into office on the coat-tails of repeal, but he has long prided himself on being an expert with the cocktail mixer—a genial and lavish host at informal White House gatherings with his cronies.

This influence has resulted in a most conspicuous party-complex in Washington itself—probably never in our history have there been more and livelier public functions that among the higher strata of officialdom.

Against this backdrop, the "nuisance" regulations of Byrnes stand in strange contrast. No more horse-racing. Draft interference on an obscure basis with all forms of athletics. Repeatedly, White House influences have tried to change the movies from entertainment to mere vehicles of propaganda.

Even the children have been included. Repeatedly, when sugar was so abundant that consideration was given to taking it off rationing, there was a mysterious refusal from somewhere high in the New Deal to allot any adequate amount to the making of Christmas and Easter candies—innocent source of so much harmless pleasure at these seasons for the smaller generations.

Byrnes' new order, allegedly intended to save coal and electricity, comes at a time when most of the winter is over—when the use presumably will slump automatically. It comes also just as large increases in coal output are being announced.

The curtailment is bound to cause resentment and confusion out of all proportion to savings—if indeed any actually result.

So far as manpower is concerned, it is difficult to see where any are released—while it will take an army of police to enforce the regulations on existing houses and to prevent the opening of speakeasies.

Americans can well ask uneasily what is going on. Maybe Congress can find out.

Red Cross Exceeds Blood Quota for Year

pints of plasma have been required to save one man. We must obtain approximately 100,000 additional pints of blood every week to keep the armed forces fully supplied.

Pointing out that February marks the fourth anniversary of the inauguration of the service, Chairman O'Connor said that the program has been expanded systematically to meet increasing Army-Navy needs.

"In 1941, we procured 48,591 pints," Mr. O'Connor added. "In 1942, 1,321,659. In 1943, 4,282,188. Each of these figures, as in the case of the 5,371,664 pints procured in 1944, is somewhat in excess of the amounts officially requested. Although some centers and mobile units occasionally fall behind in their weekly quotas, and although special situations sometimes require urgent local appeals for donors, the Red Cross has always met its national quotas."

Chairman O'Connor cited four principal reasons for the success of the program: The response of millions of individual donors, many of whom have relatives or friends in the armed forces; the co-operation of business firms, labor unions, and other organizations in sending in a regular number of donors each week; the cooperation of the radio and press and other publicity media; and the support of thousands of Red Cross workers.

In reviewing the accomplishments of the service, Mr. O'Connor said that the outstanding development of the past year was the inauguration of the "whole blood" program. Five centers on the West Coast and five on the West Coast are supplying both whole blood and plasma. The whole blood is flown daily to Europe by the Army Air Transport Command, and to the Pacific by the Naval Air Transport Service. It supplements the use of plasma, which has been widely hailed as the foremost life-saver of the war.

"Of the 5,000,000 additional pints scheduled for 1945, approximately 4,500,000 pints will be processed into plasma and the rest flown overseas as whole blood," Mr. O'Connor continued.

Mr. O'Connor emphasized that the whole blood quotas as well as the plasma quotas are being met.

"In December and January, for example," he said, "we averaged more than 1,000 pints of whole blood a day requested for Europe. Shipments to the Pacific, while fluctuating according to the need, have also been up to quota."

"I point this out especially because some confusion has resulted from reports that servicemen overseas are donating their blood. It is true that military personnel overseas donate their blood for those wounded in battle but this does not mean that shipments from this country are behind schedule. The fact is that whole blood is highly perishable and it is impossible for the armed forces to tell exactly how much they will need from day to day. If they find that they need more than anticipated, or if the need in their particular theater or sector can be supplied locally, they call on servicemen. This is a perfectly logical practice which dates back to the first World War and no mother or father should be concerned to hear that the men overseas are donating blood. They are eager to do it and it does not mean that the people in this country are falling down on the job."

Mr. O'Connor said that during the four years in which the program has been in operation, thousands of individuals and groups who do not live in or near one of the cities covered by the 31 Centers and their mobile units have begged the Red Cross with requests to open additional Centers or to send a mobile unit to their city.

"Much as the Red Cross appreciates their desire to donate," Mr. O'Connor said, "it is impractical to extend the project farther. The reasons for this are as follows:

"The Army and Navy estimate their requirements and make contracts with biological laboratories which are equipped to process the blood into plasma. The Red Cross then sets up collection facilities to keep the laboratories supplied to capacity. Since blood is perishable and must be processed within approximately 24 hours after it is withdrawn, and since the laboratories can handle only a certain amount of blood each week, the centers and their mobile units are located as near the processing laboratories as possible and operating on a strict quota basis. Accordingly, production greatly in excess of the weekly quotas must be avoided. It would not be feasible, therefore, to add additional centers or mobile units, or to extend the scope of mobile unit operations, as long as the present ones keep the laboratories, and consequently the armed forces, fully supplied."

Cities in which Red Cross Blood Donor Centers are located are: Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Denver, Detroit, Harrisburg, Hartford, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, New York, Oakland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Portland, Rochester, Saint Louis, Saint Paul, San Diego, San Francisco, Schenectady, and Washington, D. Dental Salesman To Pay $50 Fine

20 minutes later he fell asleep at the wheel after the long drive on the icy highway, and crashed into a gasoline pump at Spring House, where his car was damaged.

Benjamin P. Howard, of Philadelphia, dental salesman who accompanied McLaughlin, said that he was "fighting sleep" himself after the long ride, and that he did not see the boy or his bicycle in front of the car.

The court was informed that McLaughlin's insurance company has paid all damages to the bicycle and all the doctor's bills.

It was testified that the accident happened after dark and that the boy's bicycle carried no tail light or reflector.

30 states, the State Agriculture Department reported.

Keystone State farmers won 18th place in acreages harvested, but ranked only 12th in yield per acre. They planted 54,000 acres yielding 14.5 bushels each and valued at $1,035,000.

Last year's record was 45,000 acres producing 14 bushels apiece and totaling $1,166,000.

Home gardeners were warned to order seed early in view of vegetable reductions last season.

Beet, cabbage, cucumber and radish seeds were said to be abundant despite a 67,000,000 pound reduction in national seed output, but pea and bean varieties were reported to be scarce.

CHEWING GUM MANUFACTURERS

We want to thank all the people here at home for the fine spirit of understanding shown us since we told you that, for as long as possible, all the very best gum we could make would go only to our Armed Forces and Merchant Sailors overseas and at sea.

With this in mind, and so that there can be no misunderstanding, we want you to know that we have now used up all our pre-war ingredients and marked brands of Wrigley's Spearmint, Doublemint and "Juicy Fruit" even for the Armed Forces.

There will be no more chewing gum of these three famous brands and flavors for anyone - until we can again make gum worthy of these three trade-marked labels, which have always been your guarantee of uniform, finest quality and flavor.

Until we can bring back Wrigley standard brands we are making a plain but honest wartime chewing gum to help take care of both military and civilian needs. We are offering this gum to the public only on its own merit and for that reason it is not associated with any Wrigley standard brand but has its own brand name and flavors.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Robert F. Lang
Pastor, Harriman Methodist Church

Father, we come to thee in this time of maddening turmoil to express our gratitude for thy many blessings, especially do we thank thee for our schools. It is good to know, Lord, that while war lays its waste in the world and in the heart of humanity, there is still the way open of preparing our youth to take their place in the world. With humility we praise thee for the unselfish devotion of men and women who seek to guide day by day the development of those in their keeping. Inspire them, we pray, that they, being increasingly aware of their responsibility to mankind and to tomorrow, may with wisdom and courage, work out the many tasks of their high calling. In the name of the great Master Teacher we pray. Amen.

Speaker's Theme is "40 Years of Rotary"

would be reached which could be more indicative of what most of the people are thinking. Politics should be divorced from selfish interests, and this could be done if worked with the simplicity of Rotary.

Mr. Schramm stated that there is in international affairs a commonness of purpose in all people, but there is a lack of understanding. Rotary at one of its conventions tried to show how a universal language could be used to advantage. The speaker suggested that peoples of all nations should know a universal language and also their own native tongue.

Because of his travels in Europe, Mr. Schramm has been asked many questions. One is "What is the most outstanding thing you have found in Europe?" His answer is "The great similarity of Europeans to us." In answer to the question "What is the funniest thing you have found?" he replied: "The American tourist."

Edwood Rittenhouse told of the inception of Bensalem Club, the charter being received on January 28, 1941. He told of the many meeting places, the club finally settling at King Hall. Next week Charles J. Love, of Philadelphia, will speak on "Pigeons in War and Peace."

ing Albitz with the exception of a $5 theft.

Former State Senator Henry Snyder of Allentown, and Attorney Webster Achey, of Doylestown, representing the defendant, asked the witness if he ever talked with folks in Spinnerstown about the defendant stealing $1,000.

Hiestand denied that he ever mentioned a sum larger than $5. Hiestand testified that he missed $900 on another occasion but later found it in his own room, in another bureau.

"But you told people that David Albitz took the $900, didn't you?" Senator Snyder asked the witness. "No, I did not," Hiestand replied. The witness testified that Corporal Chester Reitz, State Police, showed him a statement signed by Albitz, and that was the first time that he learned of any confession on the part of Albitz.

Corporal Chester Reitz testified that Heistand first made a complaint to him on January 4th, this year.

Reitz said he interviewed Albitz on January 4th at 9 p. m. at the sub-station, and that at that time he first denied taking the money but later admitted taking $5 on one occasion and $10 on two other occasions, from Heistand's bureau drawer.

The witness testified that Albitz signed the statement at Justice of the Peace Koder's office where he read the statement.

Cpl. Reitz testified that he took Albitz to Spinnerstown on January 6th, searched his room for a missing $900, and found nothing. Later on, the witness said, Heistand called him on the telephone and said the money had been found in the hotel.

The officer said he saw no one hit Albitz or kick him in the stomach at any time during the investigation.

Edwood Rittenhouse told of the inception of Bensalem Club, the charter being received on January 28, 1941. He told of the many meeting places, the club finally settling at King Hall. Next week Charles J. Love, of Philadelphia, will speak on "Pigeons in War and Peace."

Universal Military Training Discussed

stick." "Compulsory military training is strictly for national defense—national safety alone."

Mr. Walton, in taking the floor, mentioned the strong demand being made at present on the statesmen for a permanent peace. After stating that such a plan as universal military training does not favor of a permanent peace, he said: "We want more than a strength to win a war. We want strength for the peace so sorely needed. Although the world generally believes in a policy of armament for defense as the best of defense, we would through universal military training be an object of suspicion." The speaker then pointed out that there must needs be in the world of the future, equality of opportunity for all races. "There must be for peoples of all countries free access to news, unbiased."

There must also be separation of church and state for an enduring peace. All these forces, we hope, also to be organized into a united nations." Mr. Walton advocated training that a force be utilized by the nations, united, to deal with all "misdemeanors" or "misdeeds" on the part of nations in the future. "The decent, moral way of dealing with the offender is at headquarters of the offender nation. Let us not set up in the name of defense the greatest armanent in the world. It will belie our sincerity, and our grandchildren will pay for it."

UP TO A RECENT MONTH,

the Western Electric Company, peace-time producers of telephone and communication equipment for the Bell System, had made more than 5,000,000 military telephones and 300,000 sound-powered telephones for war. Essential production, this. And it helps to explain why more than 100,000 people in Pennsylvania are now on the waiting list for home telephone service.
